

ABSTRACT

A method of making a semiconductor device including the steps of fabricating at least one component on a substrate and coating the component with a first self-aligned polymer film.